1. Framework

Within the WP2 Framework, Task 2.2.2. Exchanging best practices on student-centred pedagogies is an initiative organised by UNITA's Teaching & Learning Centers Network (2.2.1) and it represented an initiative of exchanging experiences between teachers and administrative staff from the six universities from the Unita Consortium on student-centered pedagogies.

2. Preparation and organization of the workshop on Student-Centered Pedagogies

2.1 Establishing the thematic, the agenda and the contents

The thematic of the workshops modules were established in July within the meetings of the Teaching & Learning Centers Network. The five days of workshops were split into two parts:

- two days in July, available only for the members of the Teaching & Learning Centers Network;
- three days in September, available for the whole academic community within the UNITA Consortium and its partners.

Within the first two days, exchanges of good practices within the Teaching & Learning Centers Network were organized, prepared by three teams formed: Team 1 - Professionalization of academic staff< Team 2 - Development of student learning and Team 3 - Technology-enhanced learning.

Each team presented a set of good practices on the specific topics. From these, the specific modules thematics were established for the three days dedicated to the whole academic community in September 2021.

The main thematics of the modules were:

2.2 Promoting the Workshop within the community

After the structure was finalized, posters and promotion materials were created and disseminated within the Unita Consortium and its partners community. A registration form was created on DataCloud.

During the promotion period, 410 teachers and administrative staff registered for participation to the workshops.

The preparation of the modules content was organized within a common effort of the members of the Teaching & Learning Centers Network, experts from all of the 6 universities participating equally to the organization efforts.

2.3 Organization of the Workshop modules on Student-Centered Pedagogies

The three workshop days offered for the whole community were organized only on the Microsoft Teams platform (due to the high number of registered participants that made the DataCloud platform unsuitable).

The three days were organized as following:

- DAY one: 6th of September 2021

-beginning time -10.00 AM CET, end time - 16.00 PM CET

-7 modules organized, the main topic of the day being good practices within the teaching process.

-the participation within the modules varied from 23 participants to 145 participants per module.

- DAY one: 13th of September 2021

-beginning time -10.00 AM CET, end time - 16.00 PM CET

-5 modules organized, the main topic of the day being good practices on assessment.

-the participation within the modules varied from 49 participants to 116 participants per module.

- DAY one: 20th of September 2021

-beginning time -10.00 AM CET, end time - 16.30 PM CET

-5 modules organized, the main topic of the day being good practices on digital learning.

-the participation within the modules was of 192 people.

All the participants received at the end of the workshops Attendance Certificates. In total 380 certificates were issued via email (297 for Teachers, 27 for administrative staff and 56 for other categories of participants).

2.4 Feedback from the participants

At the end of the Workshops, a feedback form was sent to the participants. The results from the feedback are presented in the tables 2-8

Table 2 - Feedback on planning and organization

Most of the participants consider the workshops well planned and organized (96%).

Table 3 - Feedback on usefulness of the presentations

The usefulness of the presentations was also evaluated positively by the participants (92%).

Table 4 - Feedback on the delivery of the presentations

91% of the participants considered that the presentations were well delivered within the workshops.

Table 5 - Feedback on the time management of the workshops

82% of the participants appreciate the time management within the workshops schedule.

Table 6 - Feedback on the possibility of discussions within the workshops

The opportunity to participate to the discussions was also positively appreciated by 90% of the participants.

Table 7 - Feedback on personal expectations

The personal expectations of the participants were also met in a high percentage - 86% of the feedback.

Table 8 - Overall evaluation

The overall evaluation of the participants show a mean of 4.11 (out of 5).

Most of the participants when asked what was their main benefit from attending to the workshops recognised the importance of experience sharing with colleagues from other universities, many of the participants noticing the common challenges and the different approaches to face those challenges.

3. Further development

The Teaching & Learning Centers Network will continue to develop training modules on Student-Centered Pedagogies and other specific topics, that will be delivered to the academic community of the Unita Consortium.

4. Evaluation of the results

Within deliverable 2.2.2 - Exchanging best practices on student-centered pedagogies, the workshops managed to attract more than 350 participants, constituting an important place of good practices sharing for UNITA's academic community. A variety of important topics were presented and debated, having the potential to produce positive changes within all partner universities.
